Greetings

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the University of Pennsylvania, I welcome you to the 25th Anniversary Conference of the Barbara and Edward Netter Center for Community Partnerships. This impressive milestone could only have been reached thanks to generations of Penn faculty, staff, and students—and our many partners—who have advanced the Netter Center’s important mission. Celebrating this legacy is equally a celebration of everyone who is inspired by, works with, or benefits from the Netter Center’s work.

In July, scholars from the Netter Center published Knowledge for Social Change, which blended historical context and social theory with the collected wisdom of our 25-year history in order to encourage democratically focused social progress. Everyone gathered at this conference represents a different community, with unique demographics and distinct histories, but we share many similar goals and concerns.

Penn is a leader in higher education-community partnerships, but we do not simply dictate best practices to our peers or our community partners. We lead through active and engaged listening and by being responsive to the input and needs of others as we work collaboratively. By sharing our successes and our setbacks, we can better meet our responsibilities as anchor institutions and build partnerships that enrich our communities—and indeed, society and the world. This conference is a terrific example of that ethos.

This year also marks the 10th anniversary of the generous gift from Barbara and Edward Netter to endow the Center. It was their vision, enduring through Barbara’s continued service as an advisor, that the Netter Center’s model be replicated. Today, regional training centers on the UACS model have been created, and our national and global collaborations continue to flourish.

Netter to endow the Center. It was their vision, enduring through Barbara’s continued service as an advisor, that the Netter Center’s model be replicated. Today, regional training centers on the UACS model have been established at four universities across the U.S., and we are seeing continued growth in our University-Assisted Community Schools Network. As each of you brings the lessons shared at this conference back to your institutions and communities, the impact becomes truly global in scope.

Penn embodies Benjamin Franklin’s belief that the ultimate purpose of education is to work toward the improvement of society. This common thread binds all of our attendees and speakers, and each conference session is designed to expand upon how our collective power can create social change. It is no small task; the issues we face are complex, the answers are rarely simple, and change does not happen overnight. But the importance of our missions cannot be overstated.

This legacy is equally a celebration of everyone who is inspired by, works with, or benefits from the Netter Center’s work.

The incredible vision and support from Barbara and Edward Netter have helped the Netter Center exceed my colleagues and my most optimistic hopes for what we would be able to do and accomplish. Nearly 1,700 Penn students were engaged in the community last year through academically based community service, primarily at our university-assisted community schools (UACS). UACS programs have both deepened and expanded, currently engaging children and families at nine West Philadelphia schools. Four regional training centers on the UACS model have been created, and our national and global collaborations continue to flourish.

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the Barbara and Edward Netter Center for Community Partnerships, I warmly welcome our friends from all over the world to our 25th Anniversary International Conference.

The theme of this conference, “Higher Education-Community Partnerships for Democracy and Social Change,” could not be more salient.

Martin Luther King used the phrase “the fierce urgency of now” and called for immediate “vigorous and positive action” to end segregation and the unequal treatment of African-Americans. “Vigorous and positive action” is also required at this time to combat increasing intolerance, racism and xenophobia, as well as attacks on science, knowledge, and democracy itself. In particular, universities throughout the world have an increased and increasing responsibility to contribute to the advancement of knowledge and improvement of the human condition, which includes contributing to creating and sustaining genuinely fair, decent, tolerant, diverse, and just democratic societies.

The past 25 years have seen unmistakable progress in connecting campus and community. The impressive attendance at this conference is an indicator of the growth of a higher education democratic civic and community engagement movement. Yet, we recognize, as you do, that much remains to be done. While we celebrate together the progress that has been made, we re dedicate ourselves to doing more and better in the next 25 years.

Thank you for celebrating this milestone with us. We hope the next two days will provide rich opportunities not only to discuss the work and its challenges, but also to identify and develop effective ways forward that will improve our practice and increase our impact.

Here is to another 25 years of learning from each other, working together, and making ongoing and increasingly significant contributions to democracy and social change.

Sincerely,

Amy Gutmann

Honorees

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER
UNIVERSITIES SOUTH AFRICA

Ahmed Bawa

Transformative Leadership Award

Ahmed Bawa is a theoretical physicist. He is Chief Executive Officer of Universities South Africa. Until April 2016, he was Vice-Chancellor and Principal of Durban University of Technology. Until August 2010 he was a faculty member at Hunter College, City University of New York (CUNY), in the Department of Physics and Astronomy and Associate Provost for Curriculum Development, as well as serving on the doctoral faculty of the Graduate Center at CUNY. He has also held the position of Deputy Vice-Chancellor at the University of Natal and at the University of KwaZulu-Natal in South Africa (SA). He served as Program Officer for Higher Education in Africa with the Ford Foundation and led the African Higher Education Initiative.

His Ph.D. in Theoretical Physics is from the University of Durham. He has published on high energy physics, nuclear physics, higher education studies, science education, and science and society.

Bawa served on numerous policy development teams in the post-1994 period and was an inaugural member of the National Advisory Council on Innovation. He is Fellow of the Royal Society of SA and the Academy of Science of SA. He served as Board Chair, Foundation for Research Development; Board Member, National Research Foundation; and Board Vice-Chair, Atomic Energy Corporation. He serves on several international advisory boards.

The Transformative Leadership Award recognizes ongoing dedication to producing significant societal change and to working successfully to transform institutions to help realize that goal.

Robert W. Bogle

Distinguished Civic Partner Award

Robert W. Bogle is chairman, president and chief executive officer of The Philadelphia Tribune, the nation’s oldest and the Greater Philadelphia region’s largest audited newspaper serving the African-American community.

Mr. Bogle is chairman of the Hospitals and Higher Education Facilities Authority of Philadelphia and serves on the Board of the Independence Health Group. Active in many professional, civic and social organizations, Mr. Bogle is chairman of the Council of Trustees at Cheyney University, serves on the boards of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, the Mann Music Center for the Performing Arts, the African-American Chamber of Commerce, PHLCVB, and Visit Philadelphia. President George W. Bush appointed him to serve as a member of the National Museum of African American History and Culture Commission.

Among other honors and awards, Mr. Bogle received an honorary doctorate of Humane Letters from Drexel University and an honorary doctorate of Literature from Lincoln University.

Mr. Bogle attended Cheyney University in Cheyney, Pa., to study Sociology, earning a B.A. in Urban Studies. He also attended the University of Pennsylvania’s Wharton School of Business and Finance, Temple University and the Rochester Institute of Technology.

The Distinguished Civic Partner Award recognizes significant contributions to the West Philadelphia community and its welfare, as well as longstanding leadership in the civic life of the Philadelphia region.
Nancy Cantor

National Civic and Community Engagement Award

Nancy Cantor is Chancellor of Rutgers University – Newark. A distinguished higher education leader, she is recognized internationally as a champion for inclusion and advocate for re-emphasizing the role of universities as anchor institutions that collaborate with community partners to fulfill higher education’s public mission as an engine of discovery, innovation, and social mobility. A prominent social psychologist, Cantor is recognized for her contributions to understanding how individuals perceive and think about their social worlds, pursue personal goals, and regulate their behavior to adapt to life’s most challenging social environments.

A fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and member of the National Academy of Medicine, she previously led Syracuse University and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and was provost at the University of Michigan, where she was closely involved in the defense of affirmative action in 2003 Supreme Court cases Grutter and Gratz. Cantor co-edits with Earl Lewis the Our Compelling Interests book series for the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. She has received the Robert Zemsky Medal for Innovation in Higher Education, American Council on Education Reginald Wilson Diversity Leadership Award, Anti-Defamation League Woman of Achievement Award, National Council for Research on Women Making a Difference for Women Award, and 2008 Carnegie Corporation Academic Leadership Award.

The National Civic and Community Engagement Award recognizes major contributions to developing and advancing the higher education democratic civic and community engagement movement.
Eduardo Padrón

Lifetime Achievement Award

Dr. Eduardo Padrón is the President of Miami Dade College, a national model of student achievement and the largest institution of higher education in America. In 2016, President Barack Obama awarded him the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the highest civilian honor in the U.S., for being a prominent national voice for access and inclusion in higher education. In 2009, Time magazine included him among the "10 Best College Presidents" in the United States; in 2010, Florida Trend magazine named him " Floridian of the Year"; and in 2011, The Washington Post recognized him as one of the eight most influential college presidents nationwide.

He is the recipient of the Carnegie Corporation's Centennial Academic Leadership Award, the National Citizen Service Award from Voices for National Service, and the Hesburgh Award, the highest honor in U.S. higher education. He is also an Ascend Fellow at the Aspen Institute.

Six American Presidents have selected him to serve on posts of national prominence. He serves on the boards of the Council on Foreign Relations, the White House Fellows Selection Panel, and the International Association of University Presidents. He is the past chairman of the Business-Higher Education Forum, the American Council on Education and the Association of American Colleges and Universities.

The Lifetime Achievement Award recognizes a distinguished career in advancing the democratic engagement of higher education institutions in local communities, as well as in leading this work nationally and globally.

Michael Zuckerman

Benjamin Franklin Award

Michael Zuckerman is Professor Emeritus of History at the University of Pennsylvania. He completed his B.A. at the University of Pennsylvania and his Ph.D. at Harvard. He has had fellowships from the Social Science Research Council, the National Endowment for the Humanities, Guggenheim, the American Council of Learned Societies, Rockefeller, Fulbright, Bellagio, the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Studies, and the United States Studies Centre in Australia, and he has presented lectures and scholarly papers on five continents.

His first book, Peaceable Kingdoms, helped inaugurate what was known for a while as the New Social History. His subsequent writings – four more books and more than a hundred articles – have ranged widely in such areas as American identity, popular culture, and the history of childhood and the family. They have been published in Brazil, China, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Poland, and Russia.

Zuckerman began teaching academically based community services courses in the early 1990s and has been a long-standing member of the Netter Center’s Faculty Advisory Board. For the past several years, he has taught a preceptorial in which Netter Center student leaders reflect on their experiences in West Philadelphia.

The Benjamin Franklin Award recognizes significant contributions to realizing in practice Franklin's founding vision for Penn—education for service, citizenship, and the public good.

“Democracy must begin at home, and its home is the neighborly community.”

MISSION

Founded in 1992, the Barbara and Edward Netter Center for Community Partnerships is Penn’s primary vehicle for bringing to bear the broad range of human knowledge needed to solve the complex, comprehensive, and interconnected problems of the American city so that West Philadelphia (Penn’s local geographic community), Philadelphia, the University itself, and society benefit.

The Netter Center is based on three core propositions:

• Penn’s future and the future of West Philadelphia/Philadelphia are intertwined
• Penn can make a significant contribution to improving the quality of life in West Philadelphia/Philadelphia
• Penn can enhance its overall mission of advancing and transmitting knowledge by helping to improve the quality of life in West Philadelphia/Philadelphia.

Three key strategies underpin our work. The first is academically based community service (ABCS), service rooted in and intrinsically connected to research, teaching, and learning. The second is university-assisted community schools (UACS), which educate, engage, empower, and serve not only students, but also all other members of the community, providing an organizing framework for bringing our programs, including ABCS courses, to West Philadelphia schools. Third, we view ABCS and UACS as core to a comprehensive anchor institution strategy in which universities engage in sustained, mutually beneficial partnerships with their communities. These strategies are shared with others across the country and around the world, serving as a model for democratic university-community engagement.

“As the college changed from teaching theology to teaching secular knowledge the test of its success should have shifted from the power to save men’s souls to the power to adjust them in healthful relations to nature and their fellow men. But the college failed to do this, and made the test of its success the mere collecting and disseminating of knowledge, elevating the means into an end and falling in love with its own achievement.”

— Jane Addams, The Function of the Social Settlement (1899)
If you want truly to understand something, try to change it.

— Maxim widely attributed to Kurt Lewin
“... nothing is of more importance for the public weal, than to form and train up youth in wisdom and virtue. Wise and good men are, in my opinion, the strength of a state; much more so than riches or arms, which, under the management of ignorance and wickedness, often draw on destruction, instead of providing for the safety of the people.”

Benjamin Franklin, Letter to Samuel Johnson, August 23, 1750
